P.S. Do you Eagles think for a minute... that after losing 16 games straight... you could beat Miami, one of the toughest in the NFL, without PK Man's help? Ha! Fer...git it!

Sunday, Nov. 8, 1970

Dr Sprinkle

The Philadelphia Eagles

Before your game today with the Miami Dolphins...the TV announcer (I had the game live on TV) said you'd lost 16 games straight...and maybe you'd put it all together today.

I'm telling you now...YOU didn't put it all togehher...I put you all together today...in order to beat the Dolphins...exactly as I outlined it to you and all my contacts in my letter of last week. I used ~~XMX~~ your team as a hammer to beat the Dolphins, who are higher in the ratings than you are. (What team isn't?) Since you are both PK'd teams, one of you had to lose. I chose the Miami Dolphins to lose.

Today I also had, simultaneously, the Cowboys and Giants, on radio...and this is most interesting. I beat the Cowboys all right, just as I planned to do. BUT...after the Eagles had gotten 24 points I figured things were safe to beat the Dolphins, so I switched over to the radio to concentrate on the Cowboys for a while. When I switched back to TV, the Dolphins had almost tied you. UP TO THE TIME I SWITCHED TO THE RADIO...THE DOLPHINS COULD NOT DO ANYTHING. As soon as I went away from that game to the Cowboys' game, then the Dolphins began to score against the Eagles. Get the idea? Anyway, I got back onto your game...and "froze" it so that you could win over the Dolphins.

I'm not being nice to you at all...just knocking the Dolphins off from getting to that championship. AS A MATTER OF FACT...because your Eagles' secretary called me a "nut" on the phone last week, and because Jim Smart printed that you keep my correspondence in the "junk file"...I am going to put a lot of extra english on my "attack PK" against the Eagles in the weeks to come. I'll teach you to respect PK Man!

Today I also beat the Jets, using the Steelers as a hammer. I missed on the Chiefs, because the Oilers were too weak.

Here's a true story I tried to give to Larry Bonko last week...but he didn't return my call. So I'll give it to everybody. It's by Robert Sylvester, New York Daily News, November 5, 1970. Seems that Al Woodall, of the Jets, dismayed because of the PK jinx...and playing in place of Namath, who got injured...joined a coven of witches in New York, for protection and for good luck. The witches told him, in order to beat the PK jinx, to yell "kazunt" whenever he passed. But secretly the witches tipped off the Giants (this was last Sunday when the Giants beat the Jets) and whenever Woodall tried to pass, yelling "kazunt!"...the Giants were running at him yelling "kazunt!" Hilarious. It's a true story. Today Woodall got injured in the Steeler's game. Now the Jets are down to no ~~XMX~~ quarterbacks at all. How PK'd can you get?

Now if you Eagles think you won a game today, forget it. "That 'ole black magic" will be smiting you in the future weeks...until you play Miami or Dallas or KC Chiefs. Then I might help you out again.

In the meantime...the Lord help you.

Owens

Ted Owens (PK Man)

Box 3134 CHS
Norfolk, Va. 23514

November 10, 1970, Tuesday

TO ALL NFL PRO FOOTBALL TEAMS

This is Ted Owens (PK Man). In last August and September issues of Saga Magazine it was discussed how I had ruined the Philadelphia Eagles with my mind, and through contact with UFO intelligences. There will be two more articles in Saga this coming March and April. Also, a book has just been published, and you can find it on your drugstore bookstand, a Lancer Book, called "The Seers Predict for 1971", by Brad Steiger. It is a book about "America's greatest psychics." The book discusses my work.

Reason for this letter...last night on nationally-televised Colts-Packers game the announcers were discussing the "incredible wave of injuries of pro football players this year"...never before encountered on such a scale.

I want to make sincere apologies to all pro teams for these injuries. They are my doing. It was necessary to bring this about...in order to demonstrate for certain scientists and government agencies...what my mind can do. And this was the only way.

In my letter to my 30 contacts on June 13, 1970 (scientists, govt. agencies, lawyers and others) I stated the following: "This coming fall...the Si's (UFO intelligences) are going to "PK" all football stadiums where pro football teams will play...which will cause freak accidents and injuries... and have the effect of causing pro football teams to be regular traveling hospital wards.
This communication was also sent to the Sports Desk of the Phila. Daily News, 400 N. Broad Street, Phila., Pa., Messrs. Cushman and Hochman.

I also informed my contacts at that time that I would single out five NFL teams...Chiefs, Jets, Cowboys, Eagles and Dolphins...and with my mind keep them away from the Pro Championship this year. When the Miami Dolphins won a lot, I wrote Cushman and Hochman once more, and told them I would now take the Dolphins apart and begin their losing...and since I told them that, they've begun losing big. (Last Sunday on TV I used PK on every play to beat the Dolphins, using the Eagles as a "hammer". I succeeded. Obviously, the weak and winless Eagles, after having lost 16 games, were not about to beat the powerful Dolphins, one of the best in the NFL, without my PK entering into it.)

And incidentally...that letter referred to above of June 13, 1970, also was given to a court reporter on that day...who swore out an affidavit for it and signed it. So it is on record...that my intent, through the Si's, was to cause "an incredible wave of pro football injuries."

But I am sorry to have had to do it, even for a scientific experiment.

Sincerely,

Ted Owens (PK Man)
Box 3134 CBS
Norfolk, Virginia 23514

P.S. I used PK to beat the Packers, last night, to shove the Dolphins farther back in the ratings.

Dr Gerinkle

vember 3, 1970 TO ALL CONTACTS

You've all just witnessed...a clear-cut, beautiful demonstration of my "PK" attacking several pro football teams this past Sunday. Now I want you to get one thing in mind...remember several years ago when reporters took me to a pro game in Philadelphia, and I had Woodeshick thrown out of the game...by using my mind to do it? It is thoroughly documented. The reporters wrote it up at the time. Now, Woodeshick lost his temper, ran onto the field and hit a player. There was a fight. I.e., the "PK" manipulated several humans into a fight to get the desired result.

In yesterday's Ledger-Star was the heading: "Brawls Affect Outcome of Two Pro Games." Yep. Both pro games were my PK'd targets! The Giants were behind and in danger of losing...so lo and behold a fight, which so angered the Giants they scored 16 points in only 2 minutes...to win the game. Here again, a fight...to obtain the desired result.
The other game was even more interesting...I had it on TV...and the Chiefs were ahead, with only about a minute to play. I asked the Si's for a miracle to happen so that the Chiefs wouldn't win. But...the Chiefs had the ball. Suddenly Otis Taylor, a Chief, punched a Raider in the nose (here again a fight) and both teams fought for about eight minutes. The referees got all confused and forgot where the ball had been. They got even more confused... first they penalized the Raiders (and the game would have been over) then they reversed the decision and penalized the Chiefs. This gave the Raiders the ball...they kicked a field goal...tied the Chiefs...which xxx cost the Chiefs a vital victory in the Western Division race! The result I was after! The Chief's coach, Stram, then ran into the dressing room of the referees and bawled out Finley, the referee who changed his mind re the penalty...and the referee ran Stram out of the room, yelling at Stram "Don't you call me a crook!" "Get out of here!"
So you see...the PK used fights in both games to pull out a win and a tie for my "side". Just like the PK used a fight to get Woodeshick out.
This was the second Sunday in a row that I was able to get to Miami first, then to Kansas City. Previous Sunday I had both on TV, and beath them both. Blanked out Miami. This Sunday I got Miami on the radio and blanked them out again. Miami can't understand why it's had a goose egg two games in a row. It's because I handled them personally by TV and radio.
The Giants beat the Jets, another PK'd team.
Two PK'd teams played each other...Cowboys and Eagles. Now, the PK has grown so strong onto the Eagles...that only x my personal presence at an Eagle game could offset the attacking PK. I tried to get the Eagles to get me to Dallas, so I could use the Eagles as a "hammer" on the Cowboys, but they wouldn't, so they got beaten. "Long-distance" or "absent" PK isn't strong enough to help the Eagles; but it sure will wreck the Eagles!

My PK attacks make for crazy, weird games...and I guess you really saw that in the Giants-Jets and KC Chiefs-Raiders games, yes?

My personal control over these pro football teams...via my mind...is awesome.

Ted Owens (PK Man) Owens Box 3134 CHS
Norfolk, Va. 23514

Monday, November 15, 1970

Dear Otto:

Have just made a fascinating discovery!

MY ABILITY TO USE PK IS IN DIRECT PROPORTION TO MY PHYSICAL STATUS!

Let me explain. The week previously I beat two pro teams simultaneously, one on TV and one on radio...then beat another pro team on TV. The following night I beat the Packers with XXXXXX PK on TV. But then...I got the flu. This last Saturday I was weak with flu, body ached, sneezed constantly, soaked one handkerchief after another with runny nose...the next day, Sunday, I had the Chiefs on TV, followed by the Jets on TV. Sneezing and blowing my nose...I pk'd the Chiefs first, play by play...managed to get two key players out of the game, managed to get the ball time and again to the Steelers, on freak mishaps from the Chiefs...but the Steelers bumbled and fumbled and simply gave the ball back again to the Chiefs time and again. (In this case the PK doesn't help the helped team at all...for they negate it.) And the Chiefs won. By the time the first game was over I was too weak to continue, a rarity for me. I flopped into bed and simply watched the Jets game...without trying to PK it. The Jets beat the hell out of the Rams. An upset. Furthermore, the Miami Dolphins ran all over the Saints, and beat the Saints down in Miami. Another upset. Actually, although three of my five target teams won...which is bad for my average...it was good in one way, because with me sick, and the PK weak and not working much...it could easily be seen what a tremendous job I've been doing in beating these powerhouse teams...because yesterday, relatively unhindered by me, they turned loose their normal games and whopped the daylights out of their opponents!

Today, Monday, I feel a little stronger...at least this morning... and tonight am going to try to get up enough power to beat the Cowboys on TV with PK. The flu, for the past seven days, has been putting me to bed about five in the afternoon, weak and sick. But tonight am going to have to have enough moxy to beat the Cowboys, who are high in the ratings.

I know you don't understand this pro game stuff, but actually it's one of the clearest and best indicators of how PK works... can be observed and the results evaluated

Was horrified by another football team being wiped out...Marshall. Also by the abnormal storm that hit Pakistan.
Ugh. Maybe I should throw my signed affidavits away on those.

Best to you.....

Ted Owens (PK Man)

Owens

P.S. Don't know if you know it or not...but the Marshall team being wiped out...wasn't the only football team endangered this weekend. Only a hundred miles away the University of Kentucky football team, on an airplane, was almost wiped out when a smaller plane crashed onto the airfield near their plane!

It was a near miss. All those in the smaller plane, a Jet Commander, were killed.

I think this occurred the same evening the Marshall thing happened. It was in the papers; both of these occurrences.

Dr Sprinkle

November 22, 1970

Dear Dr. Fogel, alias Max:

Let me report you the action. Last week...for PK purposes...I was knocked out with the flu. Yesterday, Saturday, I was ill again and had to go to bed in the afternoon. But today, Sunday, I arose early and geared up for the afternoon pro football games. And I made a mistake.

At 1 p.m. the Cowboys were on Channel 3, the Dolphins on Channel 10. Both "target" teams. So I had to improvise as they say in jaaz. I figured I could [redacted] halve the PK force...half on the Cowboys game, half on the Dolphins. So that's what I did...and worked the Cowboys game for a while, but since the score was 9 to 10 or something like that, I figured it was safe...and went to the Dolphins game. While I'd been PK'ing the Cowboys, the Dolphins had scored twice and were way ahead. That made me reconsider, so I returned to the Cowboys game and removed the PK there and transferred it to the Dolphins game...so that I'd have all the PK force concentrated on that game...since it was more important to stop the Dolphins than the Cowboys.

In other words, in trying to control both TV games simultaneously, the Dolphins got out of hand and scored fast (which they are capable of...although I shut them out, blanked them, three weeks straight not long ago).

Then matters got worse. The Colts dropped their passes, fumbled the ball time and again...and literally gave the game away. At least three times they could have had touchdowns...and fumbled it away. PK cannot help when that occurs. And the Dolphins won big. I was cussing. I turned to find out how the Cowboys had done since I'd left them early in the game...and found out that, unchecked by PK, they'd scored 45 points and won! So...I lost that round...and turned to the next game, the Kansas City Chiefs.

I stopped the Chiefs good. They couldn't make one touchdown in the game. Just kicked a couple of field goals. The Cardinals were on the KC Chiefs 3, and fumbled the ball to the damn Chiefs...giving away a certain touchdown...and the game ended in a tie, 6-6. But of course to me it was a win...because it meant the Chiefs didn't win... thus they didn't advance in the ratings race.

(Keep in mind that my goal is not week to week wins or losses...it is to keep the "target 5" from winning the World's Pro Championship this year. And that's what all the teams are after. So a tie to KC Chiefs was as good as a loss; and since the Cardinals did not lose, they kept their lead over the Cowboys! So it worked out great anyway. A great big plus was: I asked the SI's to get out some key Dolphins with injuries...and wham! Believe it or not...they carried four, that is four, key 1st team players off the field (Dolphins), two of which were Kiick, the star runner, and Warfield, their star pass catcher. ~~The Cowboys also lost Charlie Taylor, their star pass catcher, with a broken collar bone.~~ That will hold these two teams back even more in the race to the championship.

I'm not even bothering with the Jets, since they are out of it. I wouldn't bother with the Eagles, either, because they are out of it...but they insulted me recently...so I'll attack them when I get them on TV, just for the hell of it, to do what damage I can to them. I'll hit them tomorrow night (Monday night) when they play the Giants.

Best.....

Ted Owens (PK Man) Box 3134 CBS, Norfolk, Va. 23514

November 26, 1978, Thanksgiving

Dear Max:

A report to you on the Cowboy-Packer game today. (Cowboys won.)

I controlled the game completely...until the last two minutes. That is, I kept the Cowboys from scoring any touchdowns until the last two minutes...they got only one kick and the score was 3-3 until the last quarter. I held them back from getting a touchdown and they got another kick. The Packers kept making errors...dropped passes and thrown interceptions,..and the Cowboys went for another touchdown, which I blocked again, but they got another kick. 9-3. (Let me explain that the Packers had no offense at all. Bart Starr couldn't throw, had an injured arm. And Don Horn, while warming up to replace him, hurt himself on the sidelines and couldn't play. So Starr bumbled all the way.)

With two minutes left to play, the Packers had the ball, and a chance, anyway, to do something. Bart Starr threw the ball straight to a Cowboy, on the Packer 30. I guess that was the easiest way to solvex his, Starr's problem. The Cowboys went over for an easy touchdown which I couldn't stop, and that was it.

But here it is again...the PK was working...even with the Packers dropping passes by the half-dozen and losing horrible yardage with stupid penalties...I still manipulated the game until the last two minutes, allowing no touchdown on the part of the Cowboys, until that time, when it was virtually impossible to block one after the Packers made them a present of the ball close-in.

If the teams I'm helping would only take advantage of the many opportunities I give them to win! But they haven't the last half-dozen games! Instead, they fumble and bumble and hand the game over to my PK'd teams. Today, for instance, the Packers had three quarters to make some scores while I was holding back the Cowboys. But all they could do was come up with 3 points.

All right. The Cowboys have three games left. If I can beat them one game out of those three...they are out of it. And I will.

Looks like I'm going to have a time...keeping the Dolphins, Cowboys and Chiefs away from winning the Pro Championship, the way they're going. But that's my aim. It'll be down to the wire. What they call a cliff-hanger.

Best.....

Ted Owens (PK Man) Box 3134 CHS
Norfolk, Virginia 23514

Owens

P.S. This is irrelevant and immaterial...but I picked up the thought of a madman in New York City today, while watching the Thanksgiving Parade...and this crazy man is thinking of using a ~~XXXXXXX~~ rifle with scope to shoot people sniper-style during the Christmas parade. From the top of a tall building, he'll sharpshoot people marching in the Christmas parade. Colored fellow. Bitter against whites.

Remember I just called the shot in advance here on a bombing.

Thanksgiving, Nov. 26, 1970 TO ALL CONTACTS

This is a VERY IMPORTANT COMMUNICATION.
Today...I attacked the Dallas Cowboys with PK, in their game with the Packers. The PK successfully controlled the Cowboys for three quarters, with the score still 3-3; i.e., the PK had not allowed the Cowboys to score a single touchdown in three quarters, and part of the 4th, too. BUT...the Packers had bumbled and fumbled away THEIR chances to make a touchdown for 3 quarters. The Cowboys finally won.
I was puzzled. You have to remember...since 1965, for five years, I've been PK'ing pro football teams successfully, and consistently, with some misses, but darn few. UP UNTIL TWO WEEKS AGO. Something weird began to happen...my PK worked on the target team, all right, in every game...yet the un-PK'd team ALSO bumbled and fumbled away its chances. AT first I thought it was just a coincidence. But when half a dozen good teams like the Colts and Redskins do it in a row...I knew something was wrong.
I determined to find out. Tonight I set up communications with Control of the Si's, and presented the problem to them. The answer they gave me in a few minutes...was shocking to me. Actually, I should have guessed it.
A bit of background before filling you in on it. Several years ago I gave two demonstrations, at different times, of causing earthquakes and hurricanes and the like, around the world. What happened was fantastic. All over the world quakes and volcanoes came alive and typhoons and hurricanes ripped and roared. And floods, too. There was no doubt that it was an unusual series; no doubt at all. They were two, clear-cut demonstrations. Well, in Saga magazine you read how I'd told Otto Binder and my Contacts last spring...that coming up would be an "earthquake summer" with terrible floods, hurricanes, earthquakes, and such, around the world...as a demonstration of Si power. Since that time Europe has had unprecedented floods; San Antonio was struck by a hurricane and greatly damaged; Peru had a devastating earthquake...the worst in its history, I believe; and more recently the Phillipines have been struck by two typhoons in as many weeks, being the worst in its history; also Pakistan was just struck by a hurricane...called in the papers one of the "worst natural disasters in history." All these, obviously, were not JUST ordinary quakes, etc. Well, some months ago I contacted the Si's, alarmed at the loss of life with this demonstration, and asked them about it. They answered and told me THAT MY MIND HAD INCREASED ITS POWER AND SO THE PHENOMENA HAD INCREASED IN ITS INTENSITY, PROPORTIONATELY.
All right. Tonight they told me that that was what was my problem at THIS time with my pro football demonstrations. TOO MUCH POWER WITH MY MIND. (This was interesting...I had thought THEY were doing it; they told me that I was doing it, and this is the point I'd laughed at Zakow, the astrophycist about, when he said it was my mind doing it. I couldn't believe that. But the Si's say it is my mind. To be sure I understood, I asked them to give me an analogy in mental pictures. They quickly obliged. (This is a technique I often use with them.) In short, they said if I went to your home, where you kept a goldfish in a tank, and dropped a large lighted firecracker in the fishtank...it would stun the fish. (This compared to what I WAS doing in PK'ing teams on a football field.) Then they said: but suppose I go to your home, and light a stick of DYNAMITE and drop it in the fishtank...it would blow up your house! To clarify further...it seems, according to them, that my mind has recently increased its power so much...that in PK'ing ONE TEAM my mind is also affecting the OTHER TEAM simultaneously.

There is just too much power issuing from my mind, blanketing the football field. Both teams are now affected. And this explains the mystery that is currently puzzling the pro football world...how come the unprecedented number of injuries this year.
You see, while PK'ing a target team, such as the Jets...I ask the PK force to injure key players and get them out of the game, or the season. Out went Namath, Snell, Boozer, and lots of others. But while I was doing that, other teams were playing them. Since my power now is overlapping the other team as well...THEN THE PLAYERS OF THE OTHER TEAM ARE ALSO GETTING INJURED BY THE SAME PK. You see? Since the beginning of the season...PK'ing only five teams, but game by game those five teams playing OTHER teams...you can understand how quickly the PK reached and injured other, un-PK'd team key players.

One other item of interest. In the papers today was the headline: "A-Weapons Expert Plane Crash Victim", Boulder City, Nevada (AP "A downdraft that apparently sent a small plane diving into Lake Mead took the life of Atomic Energy Commissioner Theos Thompson, America's top man in nuclear weapons development and testing...Bing Dowdy, who witnessed the crash, said the plane "suddenly nosed straight down into the water as if a giant hand were pushing it." ..."Thompson had come to Las Vegas to visit the test site and speak at a meeting of state legislators about the need for continued nuclear testing."

The Si's destroyed Thompson. I warned the U.S. Government some time ago that the Si's would not stand for any more nuclear testing. But more important...I wrote to a good friend, Ross Conklin, in Las Vegas several weeks ago...and told him the Si's might send some UFO's over Nevada...and the Las Vegas area in particular...to give a demonstration!

It looks like they've begun.

I don't know if you remember or not...but several years ago the same thing happened when the Si's were angry with NASA. A plane flown by an astronaut crashed. A witness said that it seemed like the plane had been knocked straight downward "as if a giant hand had hit it."

Ted Owens (PK Man)

Box 3134 CHS
Norfolk, Virginia 23514

Owens